THE PARTING BETWEEN THE MISSIONARY AND HIS FLOCK AT MANGAIA. (See Page 75.)

EXTENSION OF THE SOCIETY'S MISSIONS IN INDIA.

The Directors have been much gratified and encouraged to find that the claims of India at this momentous crisis have awakened so powerful an interest and sympathy among the friends and supporters of the Society, and that the special appeal for contributions in aid of the funds required for the effectual re-inforcement and extension of the Society's Missions in that country have already been responded to with so much kindness and cordiality.

In offering their grateful acknowledgments to those esteemed friends who have been foremost in testifying their interest in this important movement by their generous donations on its behalf, the Directors would respectfully urge the numerous friends and constituents of the Society who have not yet had the opportunity of contributing to the fund to afford their best countenance and support in aid of the object.

CALCUTTA.

THE following communication from our honoured Missionary Brother, the Rev. A. F. Lacroix, written at the close of the past year, will serve to show that the operations of the Mission, although seriously checked for a time by the calamitous results of the mutiny, have since the restoration of public confidence been assiduously resumed, and not without tokens of encouragement:—

"The past year," observes Mr. Lacroix, "has been a trying one to me in various respects. In November, 1856, I was compelled, owing to long-continued ill-health, to leave my Station for a change of air, and was absent three months in the Upper Provinces. During that period I visited Benares, and was present at the General Missionary Conference which was held in that city in the December following. Subsequently I proceeded to Mirzapore, Allahabad, Futtyghur, Agra, Delhi, and other places of note, where I derived much gratification from witnessing the Missionary operations carried on by various Societies in those localities. I also either became acquainted, or renewed former acquaintance with many zealous and devoted labourers in the Lord's vineyard. Several of these dear Brethren, whose hospitality I enjoyed, and with whom I held pleasing Christian intercourse, are, alas! no more, having, with their families, been cruelly massacred by the rebels. The fruits of their labours, likewise, have for the most part been swept away, and nothing remains of the once flourishing Stations they occupied but ruined churches, schools, industrial establishments, and dwelling-houses, whilst the survivors of their native flocks are now fugitives and scattered over the country. These events truly are most mysterious; but it behoves us with humble resignation to acknowledge, even in these painful dispensations, the never-erring hand of God, who accomplishes his holy purposes in ways to us inscrutable.

"Though our prospects have been darkened by the events of the last six months, and will doubtless continue so for some time to come, still I am not at all despairing of the final triumph of the Gospel in this country; and I have a firm conviction that our great Lord, to whom is committed all power in heaven and upon earth, will, in his infinite wisdom, cause good to come out of the evil, and make this sad rebellion to contribute to the speedier advancement of his cause, and its final establishment in this benighted land.

"On my return to Calcutta, with renewed health and strength, I was enabled to resume my preaching labours in this city, and for a time carried them on with an encouraging prospect of usefulness. But when I was indulging the pleasing hope that this would be a year fraught with blessing, the great rebellion broke out. Nevertheless, public preaching to the Heathen and Mohammedans was continued till towards the end of June, when it became apparent that the excited state of the population rendered it unadvisable and unsafe to prosecute it any longer. My Brethren and myself therefore deemed it our duty temporarily to suspend operations in this department, rather than run the risk of the public peace being disturbed by our means, and the safety of perhaps hundreds of our European and Christian fellow-citizens endangered. Moreover, the minds of the people, during that period of public excitement, were so unsettled and preoccupied, and so ill fitted for quiet and calm reflection, that addressing them under such unfavourable circumstances would have been of little or no use.

"So soon as the Mohurrum and other native gatherings, during which disturbances were apprehended, had passed away, my Brethren and myself considered any further delay unnecessary, and we at once resumed our preaching labours in all the chapels throughout the town. And I am thankful to say we have hitherto been permitted to proclaim the word of God without molestation or the exhibition of any hostile feelings on the part of the native population. The congregations are as numerous and attentive as they were before the outbreak, the only difference being that there are fewer Mohammedans among them. On several occasions I have been gratified by some of the hearers accompanying me home after the preaching, from whose conversation I gathered that they had felt interested, and been not altogether unimpressed by what they had heard. At the same time I have observed with regret, though not with surprise, that the people, generally speaking, have not yet fully recovered from their unsettledness of mind; and I find them more suspicious, reserved, and less ready to put questions to the preacher than used to be the case formerly. But I hope these symptoms will also gradually subside, and make room for that confidence in the preacher's motives which is indispensable to insure success."

But the Missionaries in Calcutta, while grateful for the Divine mercies in sparing their lives during a season of unparalleled agitation and peril, and in enabling them once more to proclaim the Gospel to the heathen, have also occasion to rejoice in the recent conversion to the faith of Christ of three interesting Native Youths, one a Kulin Brahmin, and the others students in the Bhowanipore Institution.

"I have much pleasure," writes the Rev. E. Storrow, under date 20th December, "in stating that recently God has favoured us by leading three educated young men to renounce the errors of Hinduism in favour of the religion of the Saviour.

"I baptized Womesh Churder Mukorjea, a Kulin Brahmin, on the 13th of September. He was a student in one of the Calcutta Government branch schools. His attention was first directed to Christianity about two years ago, by witnessing the service conducted by Mr. Mullens, when one of our former converts was baptized; this led him to come to me for instruction, in company with a fellow student. He was eager to learn, but had the disadvantage of having received no previous Christian teaching, nor of being able to read at home such books and tracts as I gave him, save on such unfrequent occasions as were afforded him by the absence of his brother. He continued his visits for some weeks, and then they ceased altogether. For six months I heard nothing of him, nor did I know any one of whom I might venture to inquire the reason why he came not as usual. I often wondered what had become of him, for our sympathies entwine themselves very tenderly and strongly around any one who has once begun earnestly to inquire after heavenly things. 'Perhaps,' I thought, 'he has become indifferent to the things of God; or, it may be, he is drawn towards Unitarianism; or, discovered, perhaps betrayed, his heart still yearns after the truth, but he is watched, confined, or sent away beyond the reach of Christian influence.' At length one of our converts, who lived near Womesh's residence, told me that he had received some visits from him. I sent word, of course, that I should be very glad if he could call on me. When he came, I learned the following particulars, which sufficiently accounted for his disappearance. His companion with whom he had originally come had betrayed him. His brother, hearing that he wished to become a Christian, sought out his few Christian tracts and books, and in his anger destroyed them, and took means to prevent him having any further communications with us. After a few months, however, Womesh was less vigilantly watched, and in his walks near his house he found one of our converts, to whom he made known his religious history, and whose house he could conveniently frequent. From this time he received such instruction as his circumstances allowed, until, assured of his firmness and the sufficiency of his religious knowledge, we resolved to receive him. Whilst with us awaiting baptism, his brother sought to institute a suit in the Supreme Court, for the purpose of proving that he was a minor; but the attempt was too likely to fail to warrant the the case being proceeded with.

"On Sunday, the 6th December, I had the happiness of baptizing two of the pupils of our first school class. The first of these, a Kaist, named Demonath Shome, has been in the Institution four years. Two years ago he was led to think seriously of Christian truth by reading the New Testament in a class taught by Koshinett Dutt, one of our catechists. It is, however, only within the last six months that he has professedly been an inquirer. During this period he has received as much instruction as his unfrequent visits would allow, and at length these were interrupted by the discovery of his religious leanings. After some time, however, he contrived to visit us occasionally, and though our interviews were necessarily very brief, they led us to the conclusion that it was not expedient to defer his baptism any longer. Whilst under our protection a circumstance occurred which forcibly illustrates the advantages of such a course of Christian education as we give, and reveals to us what is going on in the minds of thousands in India, who yet give no sign that they themselves will espouse the truth. Demonoth has an uncle who was educated in our Institution, who now resides in Bhowanipore. He came to his nephew and said, 'Since you have come to the Missionaries to be baptized, I must write to your father and mother to let them know; but when they come to see you, don't be seduced away by anything they may tell you. If you think Christianity is true, then embrace it; but do it with your mind, and be firm. I shall not persuade you to leave this place.'

"Hurrish Chunder Doss Sen, the second convert, has been in the Institution for more than five years. Three years ago he began to think much of Christianity, perhaps more correctly, I might say, of religion, from reading our Christian school books. After this he received instruction as an inquirer, but, since he was less than fourteen years of age, it was thought prudent, and indeed necessary, to inform him that then he could not be baptized, but that if he persevered nothing could ultimately prevent his reception of Christianity. Happily, his religious feelings have continued, and during the past five months he has been awaiting our consent to receive him amongst us by baptism.

The fact became known to his friends, who immediately removed him from our Institution, and prepared to send him to a distant part of Bengal, under the care of his brother. This forced the matter to a crisis, and, to prevent his passing away beyond our influence altogether, we received him amongst the number of our converts. Whilst living with us, before his baptism, he was visited by several of his friends; his mother, in particular, was earnest in her entreaties to win him away. The morning after her visit his uncle came, and, by false and exaggerated statements of her state of mind, persuaded him to visit her; as we well knew, this was but a trap, and Hurrish fell into it. When he left us, we did not expect to see him again; but, to our joyful surprise, he returned two days afterwards. The discovery of the false means by which he had been tempted away, and a consciousness of the mistake he had committed, led him to resolve to return to us as soon as he could. As an illustration of native feeling, I may mention that none of his near relations visited him after this; they no doubt came to the conclusion that it was his fate to become a Christian, and that therefore their attempts would be altogether in vain.

"I am happy," adds Mr. Storrow, "to inform you that my chapel at Cooley Bazar is now free from debt. During the last two years we have gradually been reducing it by monthly subscriptions, and recently we contributed more than sufficient to pay off what was still remaining. This clears the way for increased effort in favour of the London Missionary Society, and for building a minister's house. Towards accomplishing the latter object, I have already purchased a small house, paid one-fourth of the cost, and arranged for the gradual payment of the remainder.

"I think the church and congregation are gradually improving in numbers and in spirit; not, indeed, so rapidly as I could wish, but perhaps as rapidly as I have any right to expect. The moral and religious growth of all communities is slow."

PROPOSED NEW MISSIONS IN CENTRAL SOUTH AFRICA.

It will be in the recollection of our readers that the Rev. R. Moffat having been invited by the Directors to afford his valuable assistance in the establishment of the projected new Missions, expressed in his reply, inserted in the "Missionary Chronicle" of November ult., his cordial concurrence in the measure, and his intention to set out with the least avoidable delay for the country of the Matabele, in the hope that, through his influence with their potent sovereign, Moselekatse, the success of the enterprise might be promoted. Accordingly our honoured Brother commenced his long and somewhat perilous journey at the end of July, and after the delays on his route necessary for the rest and refreshment of himself, his fellow-travellers, and their oxen, and having visited, in succession, Sechele, chief of the Bakwains, and Sekhomi, chief of the Bamanguato, he arrived, on the 5th September, within ten or twelve days' journey from Moselekatse's country.

The following extract of a letter just received from Mrs. Moffat, bearing date the 5th November, and embodying the above facts, will be read with interest.

"My dear husband's last letter to you, of July, would lead you to expect he would leave us about the end of that month to proceed to the far interior to make preliminary arrangements with Moselekatse for commencing a Mission there. This he did on the 28th of that month, since which we have from time to time continued to hear from him by companies of natives going to the south to seek employment. Hunting parties too keep coming out, and one of the first of these brought us most cheering intelligence in addition to Mr. M.'s letters. While he was at the Bamanguato a messenger arrived there from the Zula (or Matabelian) monarch, 'Entreating of Sekhomi to change his habits and be more peaceable, not to kill people or annoy travellers:—he said Moshete (Moffat) had advised him to do so, and he had followed his good counsel, had laid his spears in the water, and was expecting Moffat, and was longing very much to see him again, and he hoped Sekhomi would do nothing to hinder him.' This intelligence was most seasonable to me, for up to that time I had, when in low moods, had some misgivings about the new project, so suddenly resolved upon. I feared that that people, or rather the tyrant king, was not prepared for such an event; but when the Griqua hunter told me this, and assured me that he both saw and heard the man, my doubts and fears gave way, nor have they troubled me since. There are in this our day so many proofs of Divine power being exerted over men and kingdoms, quite as unlikely as this, that we must feel assured that, if 'the set time to favour them is come, none can let.' My faith is greatly strengthened, and I am enabled to wrestle hard for the success of the enterprise. We have Mr. M.'s journal up to the 5th September, then ten days beyond the Bamanguato; he and his people had been mercifully preserved up to that time, and in ten or twelve days more he would, if all was well, be among the Matabele."

Mrs. Moffat's letter is accompanied by a portion of her husband's journal, but as the incidents recorded, although in themselves of considerable interest, are nearly of the same general character as those which occurred on the former journey, an extended notice of which appeared in the January and three following Numbers of the "Missionary Chronicle" for 1856, it has not been deemed necessary to repeat the information now furnished. During his temporary sojourn with Sechele, and afterwards with Sekhomi, Mr. Moffat had the opportunity of discovering some new and singular traits in the characters of those chiefs; but his intercourse with them on this occasion had no direct bearing upon the main object of his mission, excepting so far as they and their people formed connecting links between the Kuruman Station and the country of the Matabele.

It will be remembered that Sechele and his people, when residing at Kolobeng, the station formerly occupied by Dr. Livingstone, were, in the year 1852, exposed to a ferocious attack from the emigrant Boers, who destroyed the settlement and killed numbers of the inhabitants. Sechele has for many years professed the Christian faith, and although it cannot be denied that his acts have too often belied that profession, he has uniformly approved himself the steady friend of the Missionaries. On the contrary, Sekhomi, the chief of the Bamanguato, has long been notorious for duplicity and chicane in all his transactions with the Missionaries. It was this man who intercepted the letters and supplies forwarded to Dr. Livingstone when on his journey in the interior. It is, however, remarkable that Sekhomi, though extremely jealous of the power of the formidable Moselekatse, and averse to his holding correspondence with the Missionaries, did not venture to oppose any obstacle to Mr. Moffat's journey—another instance, among many, of the extraordinary influence our friend is enabled to exercise over the rude minds of these native despots.

It is a striking fact, adverted to in Mrs. Moffat's letter, that while Mr. M. was still sojourning among the Bamanguato, a messenger arrived from Moselekatse with exhortations from that redoubted chief to Sekhomi to abstain from war and bloodshed, upon the strength of the Missionary's counsels to that effect. Well may the incident be regarded by our devoted Brother as a providential token in his favour, and serve to animate and encourage him in the prosecution of his enterprise.

NEW MISSIONARIES FOR CENTRAL SOUTH AFRICA.

We have great pleasure in announcing that preparations are in a state of forwardness for sending out four young Missionaries with a view to commence the projected new Missions on the Zambese. These Brethren will be accompanied by the Rev. H. Helmore, at present on a visit to this country, who, by seventeen years' experience of Missionary life and labour in South Africa, possesses peculiar qualifications for the work of directing and co-operating in this important enterprise. The Missionary band will, it is expected, embark for their destination in about two months from the present time, and we feel persuaded that the prayers and best wishes of our friends will attend them.

CHINA.

AMOY.

The labours of the Missionaries at this Station continue to be followed by visible and decisive tokens of the Divine favour. Within a very recent period eleven new converts have been added to the native church, and on the minds of many of the young especially, under training in the schools, the truth has made saving impressions.

At the date of the appended letter, the city of Canton was still holding out against the allied forces of England and France, and although it has since been captured, there is no reason whatever to apprehend that the amicable relations previously subsisting between the people of Amoy and the Missionaries will be disturbed by that event. Indeed, the late hostile operations against the Cantonese appear to have been regarded from first to last with singular apathy and unconcern by their countrymen at a distance from the immediate scene of action.

Under date Amoy, 9th December ult., the Missionaries observe :—

"We are thankful that the war now vigorously prosecuted against the Chinese in Canton province has not as yet had any effect in producing feelings unfriendly to us in the minds of the people of this place; and we trust that, even although Canton city be taken possession of by the British, we may still go on uninterruptedly with our labours here.

"Through the Divine blessing, which we continue to enjoy, eleven additional converts have recently been added to the church. Three of these are Chinese women, and the other eight are men.

"One of these Chinamen was baptized by Mr. Lea, at our weekly church prayer meeting; his name is Siau Tek-ch'un. He is engaged as cook on board a square-rigged vessel, having Chinese owners, which was about to sail next day for Singapore, and wished to confess Christ publicly ere leaving Amoy. Before the members of the church, and a goodly number of other Chinese then assembled at our chapel, he avowed his faith in Jesus as his Divine Redeemer, and his determination, through strength derived from Him, to live henceforth as His obedient and devoted disciple.

"The other ten adults, and also four little children belonging to them, were baptized in our chapel on last Lord's Day morning, December 6th. The chapel was, as is usual on such occasions, crowded to the door by earnestly attentive Chinese, females as well as males. Two of the gentlemen of the British Consulate, and Mr. Sandeman of the English Presbyterian Board, as well as the Brethren of our Mission, were present at that service. Mr. J. Stronach preached the introductory sermon, taking as his text 2 Cor. vi. 1. Afterwards he baptized the three women, three children belonging to two of them, and and one man. The other six men, and an infant son, held in the arms of the first of them, were baptized by Mr. A. Stronach, who also addressed the converts and the congregation, and concluded the deeply interesting service with prayer and praise to God.

"Of the three women then baptized, the first, Go Lim'so, has long listened to Divine truth at the meetings held near the north gate of the city, and also at our principal chapel. The other two, Ch'wa-chan-chim, and her daughter-in-law, Ch'wa-o-so, first heard the Gospel at a meeting held weekly by Mrs. Stronach, in the house of one of our zealous church-members, and they have since also attended at our services in the chapel. All these three females appear to have cordially received the love of the truth by which they may be saved; and their conduct is thoroughly consistent with the profession they have made.

"The seven men baptized last Lord's Day were all pleasing instances of apparently sincere conversion. The man baptized by Mr. J. Stronach, Lim Ma-chwan, is a literary man, and teaches a school of Chinese boys near the north gate of the city. There he has long and earnestly listened to the preaching of Divine truth. He has attained a clear and influential knowledge of the Saviour's grace, and appears indeed to 'believe in his name.'

"Of the six men baptized by Mr. A. Stronach, the first, Lim Sui tai, is a boatman, and has charge of the cargo boats of one of the English merchants here. His father is a member of the church under the care of our American Brethren; and his wife and his sister-in-law are members of the church under our pastoral care. During many years he has been attending at our services; but it is only within a few months past that he has truly known and loved the Saviour. We have every confidence in him as being now an enlightened and earnest disciple of Christ.

"Lim Sin-tind is a son of the man just mentioned. He was formerly one of Mr. A. Stronach's day scholars, and appears at length to have become a truly converted youth, and happy in being admitted, along with his father, into the visible fold of the Good Shepherd.

"Lim Sui-tai's infant son, Lim hwa-siong, was baptized at the same time; for in the spirit of Joshua of old he says, 'As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord.'

"Lim Ki-beng, a young boatman, is the younger son of one of our zealous female church members, Lim Hwat-so, and nephew of Lim Sui-tai. He is only fourteen years of age, but appears truly in earnest in his desire to follow, with his mother and his other relatives, along 'the way of holiness,' until all shall appear before God in His dwelling place of blessedness above.

"U K'hai-hak is a dealer in teas. He has during several years past attended almost daily at our chapel, and appears to be now a sincere and earnest believer in Christ.

"Tang-hwan-ch'ai is a pewterer, mostly employed in making the linings of tea-chests. In order that he might be able to keep the Lord's Day 'holy unto the Lord,' he has refused situations where he might have received much higher wages than he gets at present. He has acquired much knowledge of Divine truth, having long attended regularly at our religious services in the new chapel, and seems to be an earnest Christian indeed.

"Chung Sien-g'u is one of Mr. A. Stronach's boarders. He has been nearly three years at school, and is now sixteen years of age. At our meetings for the examination of candidates, and afterwards at his baptism, he answered all the questions asked him with a readiness and a heartiness which evinced a clear knowledge of the Word of God, and the lively interest which he feels in its sacred truths. His conduct and his spirit harmonize with his profession of faith in the Saviour, and of love towards Him. He has two uncles church-members, Tan-tai, and Tan Siok-hoey; they too are glad that he has come forward, and entirely approve of his being admitted into the church.

"On the afternoon of last Lord's Day ou principal chapel was again crowded to the door during the sermon; and afterwards, when the Lord's Supper was administered, numerous spectators looked on the enlarged church partaking together of the Lord's Supper.

"During the past half year four of our male church members have been removed by death, besides the two of whom we wrote in our last half-yearly letter.

"Since the 1st of March 1848 we have baptized at Amoy 193 adults and 41 infant children belonging to them. The present number of church-members is 177 adults—52 women and 125 men—of whom 22 have been baptized this year, and all these are communicants.

"The Chinese Boys' School continues prospering. So many of the youths taught there have already given evidence of decided piety, and are now 'walking in the truth,' that we feel greatly encouraged in seeking to lead all the young under our charge to devote themselves in early life to the Lord our Saviour."

POLYNESIA.

HERVEY ISLANDS.

In consequence of the severe indisposition of the Rev. A. Buzacott, and his intended removal to Sydney for the benefit of his health, it became necessary for the Rev. G. Gill to repair to Rarotonga, in order to relieve Mr. B. from the charge of the Institution and Mission on that island.

In a letter, dated Rarotonga 30th June ult., Mr. Gill gives an interesting account of the circumstances attending his leaving Mangaia, and his entrance upon his new field of labour.

"The 'John Williams,'" writes Mr. G., "arrived at Mangaia on the 31st of March, and as soon as possible we embarked for Rarotonga. My departure from Mangaia, after twelve years' labour, you will readily imagine awakened feelings of a most peculiar character. When I thought of what these people were some thirty years ago, as heathens, savages, and cannibals, when I thought of them as when I first landed in their midst, and with all these associations joyfully remembered that now many, very many, profess to be the children of God and the disciples of Christ, I felt humbly thankful that it had been my honour and privilege to be an eye-witness of the transforming power of the Gospel of God. Here most emphatically we can say we have seen the wonders of that redeeming love which heaven and earth shall for ever unite to praise. Many have felt the power of Almighty grace in renewing, sanctifying, and elevating their once polluted and debased heathen nature, and now rejoice in the fellowship of the love and gospel of Christ. The hour of parting at last came. It was hard to say farewell. People whose kindliest affections had entwined around us in the relationship which we had sustained toward them could not part without regret. To say that we were sincerely attached to them would but feebly express our affectionate interest and prayerful solicitude towards them. They followed us to the ship with their sincere expressions of goodwill and earnest prayers, much reconciled to our leaving them, knowing that the necessities of the case were imperative. [See Frontispiece.]

"I rejoice to feel that the churches, classes, and schools at Mangaia are left all in a very promising and encouraging state of prosperity and peace, and I sincerely pray that my esteemed colleague, the Rev. Wyatt Gill, and his beloved partner, may for many years reap an abundant harvest of precious souls for Christ. Our Brother there will have much to do, and he ought to have immediate help from Europe. The staff of native agency is as efficient as we can well expect, but the main thing, under God, is the active and permanent control of European superintendence to consolidate and secure what has been already gained. I hope this subject will receive the serious attention of the Board at this very critical moment in the history of the Mission in the Hervey group.

"In the good providence of God we had a very favourable passage from Mangaia to this place. As soon as practicable the ship discharged her Rarotonga cargo, and arrangements were made for the embarkation of those who had been appointed as native teachers for the westward islands.

"A very solemn and interesting service was held on the evening of the 10th of April, on which occasion five of the senior students were publicly dedicated and appointed to the service. Each arose and addressed the congregation in a very appropriate and intelligent manner. They appeared deeply to feel the responsibility of the work before them, upon which they were about to enter, with a just estimate of the toil and trials to be endured. They very satisfactorily expressed themselves as to the source of their strength and confidence, relying upon the promise of Him who has said, 'So I am with you even unto the end.' With such feelings have they committed themselves to God and His cause. Mr. Buzacott, Mr. Gordon, and myself, gave addresses suitable to the occasion, and many of the elder church-members also followed in Christian and affectionate exhortation that our young brethren should prove themselves faithful in their respective fields of labour. I am sure, could any of our Christian friends have been present at such a meeting, they would have rejoiced that there were found so many ready and qualified agents willing to carry forward the work of the Lord in heathen lands far beyond them. Mr. Buzacott speaks in the highest terms of commendation and confidence both as to the piety and suitability of those who have now gone forth, and we hope that from time to time there may be many such who will join them as successful ambassadors for the cause of our Lord and Master. The Institution at present contains thirteen married and two unmarried students, twenty-eight individuals, some four or five of whom will be appointed to suitable spheres when the 'John Williams' shall make her next call here from Tahiti."

WEST INDIES.

DEMERARA.

DURING a portion of last year the cholera prevailed to a fearful extent in this colony, and great suffering and mortality were the result. But through the Divine blessing upon the zealous efforts of the Missionaries and other benevolent European gentlemen, most timely and effectual aid was rendered to numbers who would otherwise have perished. It is also a subject for devout thankfulness that the visitation was overruled for the spiritual benefit of many of the sufferers.

The Rev. T. Henderson, of Bethel Chapel, under date 24th November ult., in reference to these events, writes:—

"For several months I was incessantly occupied, frequently day and night, attending the sick and the dying, and doing what I could to save the lives of my neighbours and my people at Buxton. From the first appearance of the epidemic I selected a number of intelligent and active men, who soon became most valuable and efficient visitors and nurses. I divided this village into districts, and appointed visitors to each. These were relieved by relays during the night. I made the Mission-house a sort of dispensary and rendezvous for the visitors. By always having a supply of medicines on the spot, and being able to attend, either personally or by a visitor, to every case of sickness as it occurred, I succeeded in persuading the people to be on the alert, and report every case the moment any symptoms of cholera, or approach to cholera, made its appearance. By this means we generally succeeded in arresting the progress of the disease, when timely notice was given, and when there were no adverse circumstances.

"For several months this house was like a hospital or medical school. It was seldom empty, by night or day, of people applying for advice, assistance, and medicine, or visitors waiting to be called, or reporting the result of certain treatment. Out of nearly 300 cases, we only had 57 deaths in this village.

"Of the zeal and devotedness of the visitors, both here and at Buxton, I cannot speak too highly. But for their valuable and self-denying labours, many more must have fallen victims to the epidemic. Without their assistance I could have done comparatively little to alleviate the sufferings of the sick and dying, or to save life.

"Several of these useful men proved a great blessing as spiritual instructors and comforters to the sick and the bereaved. The people generally were prepared then to listen to any one who spoke to them the words of eternal life. The earnest and simple piety, and thorough devotedness of these Christian men, astonished some who had witnessed what many professing Christians are in England, but had never before witnessed such a real manifestation of religious principles among the coloured members of our churches here.

"I accompanied a medical gentleman one night to the cholera hospital at Buxton. When nearing the hospital, we heard a voice, in the stillness of the midnight hour, and soon discovered it was the voice of prayer. I recognised the well-known voice of a devout deacon of the Church at Buxton, who had been reading the Word of God to the sick in the hospital, and was then pouring out the fervent desires of his soul to God in behalf of the sick by whom he was surrounded, the bereaved, and the impenitent. John —— has been for many years one of the most useful and honoured members of the Church in Buxton, and one of the most zealous teachers in the Sabbath-school. He has honourably filled the office of superintendent for several years.

"I also received most valuable and kind assistance from several gentlemen, proprietors and representatives of neighbouring estates. I have never witnessed anywhere more real kindness and disinterested devotedness to the sick and destitute than was manifested by R. J. Kelly, Esq., of Plantation Success, during the recent visitation of cholera. His unremitting attention to the sick during a heavy wet season; his praiseworthy efforts for the good of the villagers generally; and his kind and liberal aid during the epidemic, surpassed all that I have ever witnessed, in this or any other country. That gentleman liberally supplied the poor of this village with blankets, and rendered essential help by frequent supplies of brandy and medicines, and otherwise. To him we were also indebted for the soup-kitchen which was established in Beterverwagting village, for whose support Mr.

Kelly and a few gentlemen on the coast, including the Hon. Thomas Porter, liberally subscribed upwards of 200 dollars.

"Through the liberality of the Hon. D. Macdonald, I was enabled to set on foot a soup-kitchen at Buxton, where all the sick and convalescents were daily supplied with suitable and nutritious diet.

"Although it is most difficult to arouse many in our congregations here from the death-like callousness and lethargy which years of habitual indifference and impenitence have confirmed, the recent visitation of cholera was blessed in producing a very general awakening, and a deep interest in spiritual things, such as I have never before witnessed among the people of this country. All our meetings on Sabbath and during the week, were well attended by most attentive hearers, and in our congregations many devout worshippers were to be found.

"I was frequently obliged to leave my congregations, here and at Buxton, to attend to the sick and the dying, while the people continued in prayer and supplication. The sudden and alarming deaths which were announced from time to time seemed to strike terror into the hearts of many sinners who had resisted the truth for years.

"While the number of sufferers increased there was a very great increase to the number of earnest inquirers, who also required special attention, counsel, and instruction. I never more cheerfully performed any duty than when I undertook the instruction of those newly-awakened inquirers, whom I met night after night, and to whose simple and sincere confessions I listened with deep interest and emotion.

"From a large number of applicants it has been my privilege to receive into sacred fellowship forty-three promising disciples of the Saviour. Most of these are young people, and eighteen of them have become active teachers in the Sabbath-schools. Several of these young people, who have grown up in the Bible-classes, understand the Gospel as well as I do myself, and are therefore able to teach it with a clearness which was unknown to their fathers.

"I have the prospect of receiving fourteen additional members during this and next month. Many more might have been added to our fellowship, but I have deemed it expedient to exercise great caution.

"Among the recent additions to the Church, there have been several instances of deeply interesting conversions.

"I was called sometime ago to visit a young man who was very sick, but his object in sending for me was to open his mind and seek counsel respecting his hitherto neglected soul in the prospect of death. He did not attempt to conceal what his former life and character had been; and, with a view to relieve his mind of one burthen, he expressed a wish to be united in marriage at once to the person with whom he had formerly cohabited.

"Between disease and an awakened state of mind he became unmanageable, and was removed to the Colonial Hospital. On his return to the village, after his recovery, he came to me, and feelingly referred to what he had said in his sickness; and now that God had spared his life, he expressed a strong wish to devote his redeemed life to God. After a short time of probation he was cordially received into Christian fellowship. His public profession of faith in Christ seemed to make an impression on the minds of many who knew what his former character had been. This 'brand plucked from the burning' soon showed that he was not ashamed of the Gospel, for he was frequently to be found teaching and praying on the same estate where he had formerly danced and gambled.

"Thomas ——— felt a strong desire to see his parents and brother, who are members of a sister church in Berbice; but he would not return as he had left, without testimonials of his discipleship.

"I received a few weeks ago a note which was dictated by him on his dying bed, in which he says, after referring to his former life:—'After the Spirit of God take to do with me, by the grace of God I tried to seek the Lord. I walked in his ways, followed his example, guided by his commands, and in my sickness I found the Lord is near unto me. On my departure I am found in Jesus' hand. I have finished my task, and I hope we all may meet in heaven. Farewell. . . . . May God bless and prosper our Church; let it be a field whom the Lord hath blessed.'"
